AUDACIOUS KISSANE.

The Rogue and Forger Was a Typical Soldier of Fortune.

The hero of the following story, Kissane, had been a prominent business man in Cincinnati. He was tried with others and acquitted on the charge of burning the steamboat Martha Washington to secure insurance, and afterward was sent to the penitentiary for a large bank forgery:

Into the Walker Nicaragua expedition, made up for the most part of "men of strong character, tired of the humdrum of common life and ready for a career which might bring them the sweets of adventure or the rewards of fame," Kissane now, on coming out of the penitentiary, threw himself with all the abandon of his daring nature. He arrived at Nicaragua Feb. 1, 1856. Under an assumed name he was soon appointed and commissioned assistant commanding general, with the rank of major, and ordered to take charge of the commissariat of the army. He showed such ability that Walker soon promoted him. For eight or nine months he had the entire finances of the country in his hands, and but for his careful management the filibustering scheme, if it conceded, would have met an earlier defeat.

When General Walker marched to Rivas, he left Granada in charge of Kissane. The latter made sudden sallies on the neighboring haciendas, and, capturing the wives and daughters of prominent Nicaraguans, held them as hostages to be exchanged for money or provisions. He is reputed to have made a fortune in the sale of confiscated haciendas and vouchers. Under his direction cathedrals and convents and private dwellings were pillaged of gold, silver and jewels. The plunder, which filled six large cedar chests, was melted, packed in small bulk and shipped to New Orleans. Robed in priestly vestments and carrying the holy eucharist, Kissane led a triumphant procession through the streets of Granada. His audacity and bravery won him devoted followers. Few, if any, of his companions in arms suspected his early history. Nevertheless the tropics did not shield him wholly from memory of the past. Recognizing in one of the youthful followers of the army the son of a man who had testified against him in the Martha Washington case, Kissane had the young man arrested on some trumped up charge and shot down in cold blood.

At the collapse of the expedition Kissane caused to be published in the papers accounts of the heroic death of himself under his new name. Meanwhile he escaped from the country to Panama on board the United States sloop of war St. Mary's, Captain Davis. —Lida Rose McCabe in McClure's.

Bret Harte's "Overland" Enemy.

In The Atlantic Monthly Mr. Charles Warren Stoddard, describing the appearance of Bret Harte's "The Luck of Roaring Camp," explains the story of the woman who was opposed to its publication. There have been many renderings of this incident. Mr. Stoddard's version is unquestionably the correct one.

In the August number of The Overland Monthly (1868) appeared "The Luck of Roaring Camp." If Mr. Harte had been [illegible] to his vocation before, that doubt was now dispelled forever. Never was a more emphatic or unmistakable literary success. That success began in the composing room, when a notable personality revealed at the unexpected combination of mental force, vitality and originality. No doubt it was all very sudden and unexpected. It took the editorial and compositorial forces, the business office and a limited number of worthy people who had seen "The Luck" in manuscript as they had never been shaken save by the notorious California earthquake. The climax was precipitated when the justly indignant editor, whose motives, literary judgment and good taste had been impeached, declared that "The Luck of Roaring Camp" should appear in the very next number of The Overland Monthly or he would resign his office. Wisdom finally prevailed, the article appeared, The Overland's success was assured, and its editor was famous.

A Prophetess Confounded.

One of the most diverting tales told in connection with the art of anagram making relates to a certain Dame Eleanor Davies, wife of Sir Joshua Davies, says a writer in Lippincott's Magazine. She lived in the time of Charles I and was a constant croaker and foreteller of evil. At length she made herself so obnoxious to the government that she was cited to appear before the court of high commission. She fancied that she was gifted with prophetic powers, because the letters of Eleanor Davies formed the anagram "Reveal, O Daniel." This was not a good anagram, as it used the "l" twice and did not employ the "s" at all.

She resisted all the efforts of the bishops to bring her to reason, but was at last entirely defeated by a witty dean, who took it her with her own pencil by making another anagram, not so complimentary to her prophetic insight, "Dame Eleanor Davies—never [illegible] a [illegible]." This caused her to question the validity of her own inspiration, and effectually disconcerted her that no [illegible] of her.

THE BARS OF HEALTH

once down, disease finds an easy entrance.

If there is a weak spot in the body, disease-germs will find it. They will lodge right in that spot and unless they are driven out at once, will increase and multiply and grow into seriousness. Weakness is a predisposition to disease. Whether the weakness be local or general, it is dangerous. Good healthy strength all over the body is the best safeguard against disease. Debility of any kind is a direct invitation to serious sickness. The reason that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption if taken in the early stages of the disease, is that it puts the whole body into a hearty, healthy condition. The poisonous tubercular matter is thrown off by the lungs, and the pure, rich blood coursing through them, quickly stops the inflammation, heals the broken membranes and makes the lungs perfectly strong and sound. Consumption is marked by wasting away of the bodily tissues and vice versa. A wasting of the flesh brings on consumption. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery induces the accumulation of sound, hard, healthy flesh. It increases the appetite and the capacity of the digestive organs for the assimilation of food. It is a purifier, a tonic and a powerful curative remedy, all in one bottle. All who will send their addresses, and twenty-one cents in postage stamps, to cover wrapping, to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., will receive by mail a book of 1000 pages, which tells all about the "Golden Medical Discovery."

The Baireuth Idolatry of Wagner.

As affording an insight into the critical methods of the Baireuth circle, let us take as a striking example one of the most untiring of the bodyguard, Emerich Kastner, who, as the compiler of a Wagner catalogue—a catalogue of writings and musical works by and upon Richard Wagner—had acquired the rank and title of great archivist of Wagnerian literature. Kastner introduced a new, critical method, based on the number of beats and the metric measure and began to measure out the works of Wagner as one would a stretch of roadway or a field, with the intention and conviction of discovering an unsuspected and highly important principle in art. By careful computation Kastner found that "Rienzi" contained 5,980 beats; the "Flying Dutchman," 4,434; "Tannhauser," 4,831; "Lohengrin," 5,129; the "Meistersinger," 6,513. He then announced, by means of a demonstration whose secret will remain eternally insoluble, that the life destiny and artistic experiences of Wagner were reflected in these dry numbers. In fact, he went still farther and grouped together the number of beats in every single scene from the operas of the master, continually calculating, adding and subtracting until he reached, through purely arithmetical methods, the establishment of psychological laws.

This absurd sport, played by him with figures and notes, many of his colleagues pursued with the words, syllables, nay, even the single letters, of Wagner's texts. Thus a literature was created whereby mental criticism was to be replaced by those mechanical instruments—the balance, the microscope and the knife of the viviseotor. All these researches, prosecuted with much ardor, clearly demonstrated to what a degree artistic views may be lowered through blind idolatry.—Herr Alexander Moszkowski in Forum.

The Afternoon Nap.

The frequency with which medical men are asked whether it is harmful to indulge in the afternoon nap is not, perhaps, surprising for several reasons. Most persons have had experience in the seductive charms of the somnolence which has followed the comfortable ingestion of a midday or evening meal. The meal finished, the diner arranges himself comfortably in an armchair; it may be he lights a pipe or cigar, takes up a newspaper and prepares to make the most of the restful conditions of his mind and body. But nature soon begins to assert her sway. In time the eyelids close, the head begins to nod, the newspaper falls from the hands, the pipe, no longer supported in the mouth, falls to the floor, and the symptoms of a nap are complete. Whether the winks be 40 or 100 in number, the result is the same—a short, sound sleep.

Then comes the question, Is it harmful thus to fall asleep after a meal? By no means, for the very obvious reason that the process is merely a physiological one, and as such, when it occurs, is quite natural. When digestion is in progress, nature has arranged that all the available blood in the body shall be collected in and about the digestive organs. Consequently the blood supply to the brain falls to a low ebb, and thus sleep is easily induced. On the other hand, of course, physiologically, it is wrong for brain work to be attempted immediately after a solid meal.—Medical Press.

Parliamentary Amenities.

In Michigan some years ago a bill was before the legislature to restore the death penalty for the crime of murder. Three of the ablest members of the house made long speeches in favor of the bill—so long as to be found wearisome, especially by those who disagreed with the opinions expressed. When the third man had finished, a young member on the other side of the chamber rose and said very sarcastically:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of privilege."

"The gentleman will state his question of privilege," said the speaker.

"Mr. Speaker, I wish to inquire of our friends of the other side of the house which they think is preferable—to be hanged or to be talked to death?"

The question was greeted by applause. Then suddenly some one with a very loud voice said:

"Oh, well, if you're going to talk we prefer to be hanged."—Youth's Companion.

Bismarck and Boulanger.

A few years ago a statesman of European fame visited Bismarck at Friedrichsruh, and the two walked together through the latter's plantation of exotic pines and firs, of which both were collectors. The visitor improved a lapse in the conversation about conifers to bring up the then recent topic of Boulanger. "Did Germany at the time really take him seriously?" he asked. "And what did you yourself think of the man?" The ex-chancellor, apparently in all candor, replied that he knew very little of the subject. "It is true that I was in office at the time," he said. "But just then there was a kind of beetle which got in among those firs of mine and was eating out the central shoots, and really that worried me so that I scarcely paid any attention at all to what Boulanger was doing."

Snow White Cattle.

The breed of snow white cattle which were used in the sacrifices in Athens and Rome from 2,000 to 2,500 years ago is still in existence in Calabria. Great pains are taken to maintain the strain of blood in all its purity, and calves showing a single hair of any other color than white are at once separated from the herd.

Happy Days.

Fred—Mamma, our principal says his schooldays were the happiest days of his life. Do you believe that?

Mamma—Certainly. He wouldn't say so if it were not true.

Fred—Well, I suppose he played hookey and didn't get caught.—Philadelphia Times.

A NEW JUDICIAL DISTRICT.

A bill to redistrict the State for judicial purposes has passed both houses of the Legislature. It creates the Fifth Judicial District, which comprises the county of Humboldt, now a part of the Second Judicial District, which comprises the counties of Washoe, Churchill and Humboldt.

At present the Judges of the First, Third and Fourth Judicial Districts receive each a salary of $4,000 a year and traveling expenses, and the Judge of the Second Judicial District receives a salary of $5,000 a year and traveling expenses. The bill passed by the Legislature reduces the salary of the Judge of the Second Judicial District to $4,000 a year, and fixes the salary of the Judge of the Fifth Judicial District at $2,400 a year. The Washoe delegation in the Assembly introduced and passed a bill in that body reducing the salary of the Second Judicial District to $3,600 a year. This bill was "hung up" in the Senate, where the Washoe delegation, which comprises one Senator, is said to be opposed to it. Yesterday the Washoe Assemblymen endeavored through other Senators to get the bill called up in the Senate for final disposition, and it will probably be disposed of in that body to-day. Lawyers are not favorable to any measure reducing the salaries of District Judges, presumably because all have aspirations and hope some day to wear the ermine. Taxpayers, however, think that a salary of $3,600 a year and traveling expenses is a reasonable compensation for the Judge of a Judicial District comprising the counties of Washoe and Churchill counties, and as the law would not go into effect until January, 1899, it would not effect Judge Cheney, whose term will not expire until that time.

ARRANGING WITH SPAIN.

Secretary Sherman has announced to his associates that he is in a fair way to make arrangements with Spain that will remove a great cause of irritation in Cuba. He has submitted to the Spanish Government a proposition that American citizens who are suspected or convicted of complicity with the insurgents shall be immediately expelled from the island of Cuba, without imprisonment or prosecution, unless they shall voluntarily return and place themselves in jeopardy. This arrangement is not intended to apply to persons engaged in actual hostilities or who have been taken with arms in their hands.

An arrangement such as Secretary Sherman proposes to make would be preferable to the conditions now existing in Cuba. As it is correspondents and others are arrested and imprisoned, refused a trial and treated as outlaws. The Government will not interfere and Weyler is permitted to do as he pleases. American citizenship affords an individual no protection from Spanish outrages if he ventures to set foot in Cuba.

Chicago Democrats.

CHICAGO, March 11.—The Democratic City Convention was called to order at noon to-day by Chairman Thomas Gahan of the Democratic Central Committee, who introduced C. S. Thornton as Temporary Chairman. Ex-Governor Altgeld was not present, but it was well known that he was to dominate the gathering. The slate included Carter Harrison for Mayor. A long wrangle took place in the Committee on Resolutions over the financial plank. The platform as presented to the Committee made no direct reference to free silver coinage, but ascribed the prevailing business depression to the present monetary system, which it condemned, and ended by lauding W. J. Bryan and ex-Governor Altgeld. The platform as practically presented was adopted. Carter Harrison was placed in nomination by his chief ex-rival, A. S. Strude, and nominated by acclamation. Ernest Hummel was nominated by acclamation for Treasurer.

EASTERN NEWS.

Commissioner of Pensions Tendered to a Tennessee Man.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—H. Clay Evans of Tennessee has been tendered the office of Commissioner of Pensions, and probably will accept. Evans represented Chattanooga district in Congress for several years, and under Harrison was First Assistant Postmaster General. Later he ran for Governor of Tennessee on the Republican ticket. The result was in doubt for many weeks, but finally it was announced that Turney, Democrat, had been re-elected. Evans is a manufacturer, having large railway supply establishments at Chattanooga.

TAMATAVE, Madagascar, March 7th, via Port Louis, Island Mauritius, March 11.—Ranavolara III, the Queen of Madagascar, who only held the position since the island was made a French colony on June 20, 1896, has been exiled to the Island of Reunion, a French possession near Mauritius. The queen succeeded to the throne on the ... of her mother July 13, 1883. On May 20, 1895, a French expedition was dispatched to Madagascar and on October 1st the capital being occupied by the French, a treaty was signed whereby the queen recognized and accepted the protection of France.

MIRRORS OF AIR.

What It Is That Causes the Marvel of the Mirage.

The cause of the mirage is now well understood—so well understood that there are ways of making small mirages for experiment.

The simplest explanation that I can give is to say that the rays of light coming from the thing that is seen are bent in going through layers of air differently heated. When these rays are so bent as to be almost level with a layer of air, they do not enter it at all, but (so to speak) glance off and are reflected as if from a mirror. ... the air reflects ... as a ... mirror or a body of water ... lay between the eye and the ...

This explanation will give you a general idea of the cause of the mirage. In ... of the ... the reflecting air mirror is believed by the observer to be water, and the ... changes its place as you go forward just as a reflection would move as ... advanced on a glass mirror. In the ... of the ship the air mirror seems to ... above you and reflects the ship, which is really out of sight over the horizon. But I do not pretend to explain all about the different images that may possibly be formed under different conditions of the atmosphere; that is a schoolroom task, and a hard one.

The fata morgana is a form or modification of mirage often seen in the straits that separate the toe of the "boot" of Italy and the island of Sicily, just opposite. When the sun is just at the right position and sea and air are also ready to help, strange views of objects upon the opposite coast are seen from Calabria—sometimes magnified and set against a background of colored mists. Fata morgana means the fairy of the sea.

It is said that sometimes, during a hot and still summer day, by placing the eye close to the surface of a dry road, a mirage can be seen, but I have never tried it.

Before these and other strange sights were understood and explained we need not wonder that sailors and travelers held many strange beliefs in regard to them.—Tudor ... in St. Nicholas.

Newspaper Profits In London.

... a ... before Mr. Justice ... recently which, if correctly reported, shows what is the profit of the ... holders of the Times. Mr. Adams bought one-fourth of two-thirds of one-ninth of two-sixteenths (or 1-1,712) of the Times from Mr. Brodie for £353 on the assurance that this minute share was worth about 25 per annum. According to him, after he had purchased the share, he found it is only to be worth £17 a year. On this he asked for damages. The jury assessed the damages at £255. Assuming the share to be worth £18 per annum (which seems about the average value), it is clear that the net dividend on all shares is £27,216. Ir. ... believing it to be worth 2,353, paid for it 14.8 years' purchase. ... valued it at £988, which, taking the annual return at £18, would be 16 years' purchase, making The Times worth £435.456. ROSSLAND.

S. F. Loughborough on the Richness and Singular Order of the Camp.

S. F. Loughborough of this city, for years a member of the Texas rangers and afterward Sheriff of one of the border counties of New Mexico, has arrived here, after three months' absence at Rossland, B. C., where he has for some time past been interested in mining. He is part owner in six properties there, and of these three are shipping ore and more than paying expenses.

Mr. Loughborough believes that in five years there will be a number of towns in that part of British Columbia, any one of which will surpass Butte, Montana, in population. Of these, Rossland, New Denver and Trail City are a few. He says the mineral is widely distributed and is so rich as to surprise him, though for years he has been familiar with mining.

Another thing that has won his greatest admiration is the way the law is observed in that part of the country. Although Rossland has some 8,000 inhabitants there is but one man to preserve order. He is the chief of Police, Constable and Town Marshal, all in one. Nobody questions his power. It is absolute.

No revolver or other weapon is allowed to be carried by any one. There are no homicides, Ladies may walk about at any time unaccompanied by escorts and never hear a word directly or indirectly that might offend or even seem harsh. There is no profanity among the miners or others when on the streets. It is the most orderly camp he ever saw.

"When I saw all this," said Mr. Loughborough, "saw how admirably the laws were executed, and reflected that the city was but three years old and was in a great stretch of new country filled by men from all parts of the globe—it seemed to me phenomenal. I could not help but have a high opinion of British justice and British law when I thought how different it was in similar places in the United States, and in San Francisco. I felt like becoming a citizen of Great Britain much as I had hitherto depreciated that country.

"I don't know but I will do it yet. It made my blood boil and made me feel ashamed of my country when as I came away from Rossland on the stage and had reached Northport (on the American side, only seven miles away) the first thing that I saw was a man chasing another one with a gun.

"The country is one of the richest I ever saw. I was surprised at the number of paying properties. There is no intemperance. Everything is carried on in order with entire safety to everybody."—S. F. Chronicle.

Let Us Fix Up.

It is a well known fact that usually at about this season of the year the citizens of Reno begin to clean up their yards and lawns and trim the trees and shrubbery to prepare the way for the growth of vegetation that is close at hand. To all who take pride in their homes and in Reno, it is suggested that they hurry up and get done as soon as possible for these reasons: It is said that a large number of business men and merchants of San Francisco contemplate visiting their patrons, the business men and merchants of Reno, on or about the 15th of this month. Some say times are so dull they must do their own "drumming" while others insist it is simply a "social function" and they desire to promote closer relations with their patrons. At any rate nothing can be lost by Reno's putting on its best "bib and tucker" and looking pleasant.

Sugar Beets

Colonel W. H. Holabird of Pecos Valley, N. M., is in the city. If he could have his way many of the States in the Union, particularly California, would engage in the sugar beet raising industry upon such an extensive scale that Germany would be forced out of competition and compelled to deny revenue to her high-strung young Kaiser.

The history of the sugar beet is by no means uninteresting. Colonel Holabird tells how it was first shaped, somewhat like a boy's peg top, with a little over five per cent of sugar, and how by selection and elimination longer beets were grown, until those now raised on his place in New Mexico are longer than an inaugural message and contain nearly 20 per cent of sugar.

"The salts of the earth near the surface," said Colonel Holabird, "are of little value to the beet, but when they penetrate below the top stratum they absorb those qualities which produce the maximum of sugar, and in no part of the country can greater results be obtained than in California.

"The acreage devoted to sugar beet culture in the United States is as follows: Chino, Cal., 10,000 acres; Alamitos, 4,000; Watsonville, 12,000; Alvarado, 8,000; Lehi, Utah, 3,500; Grand Island, Neb., 5,000; Norfork, Neb., 5,000; Eddy, N. M , 3,000."

The coming investment in America which will cause men to hold their breath in astonishment at the contemplation, in Colonel Holabird's opinion, is the sugar beet industry. He estimates that 920 more establishments, each using $500,000, are required to furnish the United States with sugar. Thus $4,600,000,000 would be devoted to the business.

"Sugar cane is doomed," said Colonel Holabird, "and the only way to defeat what we call the sugar trust is for sugar consumers to ask for California beet sugar."—S. F. Chronicle.

The Leadville Strike.

At a meeting of the miners at Leadville night before last by a vote of about 4 to 1 the strike which has for more than eight months paralyzed every kind of business in that town, was declared off. The result was brought about, the dispatches say, through the mediation of Eugene V. Debs and Mine Manager T. S. Wood

This has been one of the longest and most costly strikes in the history of mining and should be a lesson to all men in any way connected with the management of labor unions. A strike in order to be of service to those engaged in it should demand nothing unreasonable, It will then have the support of the public. If the histories of strikes show one thing more conclusively than another it is that few succeed where public opinion does not support the claim of the strikers

The Leadville miners were getting fair wages under agreed rates which were not to be increased unless silver appreciated. The miners thought they could get more, so they tried it and lost. They had the sympathy of miners and financial help to a large extent, but many were fearful of the result from the start.

In view of what has taken place in this sad and costly affair there can be no harm in suggesting Crockett's advice, "be sure you are right and then go ahead."

In speaking of the termination of this strike a goldbug partisan says "the advance agent of prosperity will strike off the miners' chains in good time." Considering the fact that the "A. A. of P." and his political associates have rivited these chains onto the miners and the people generally, and their avowed policy is such as will assuredly shut down and stop all mining of silver, it is not so easy to see, with the naked eye, how the "A. A. of P." is going to "strike off the chains."

Novel, Fresh and Attractive.

Next Monday evening, March 15th, the famous Webling Sisters will appear at McKissick's Opera House in scenes from Shakespeare and old English comedies, and also in descriptive dances. John Ruskin, the celebrated English critic, describes the descriptive dances as being "the poetry of motion." The New York Herald says of the recent performance there: "Nothing for a long time has been seen in New York at once so brightly novel, so fresh and so attractive as the selections given by the Webling Sisters from English comedies, Shakespearean and other old-time dramas." An Arctic Christmas.

The crew of an arctic explorer had great pleasure, one Christmas amid the ice and snow, in teaching the little Eskimo children how to observe an American Christmas. The queer little tots had never heard of a Christmas tree, and Santa Claus was an unknown personage. The sailors were desperately homesick, until one of them, with little ones of his own, happened to think of a Christmas tree for the little, chubby Eskimos, with their round heads and soft, dark eyes.

A real, live, green tree was, of course, out of the question in that icy region, so the men gathered up the bones of slaughtered walruses, bears, whales and other creatures and tied them together so that they branched out in every direction.

When it came to candy, they could not get that, either; but instead they ... balls of whale blubber, or fat, of which the little fur wrapped Eskimo is ... fond, and these queer substitutes for caramels were tied on the ... with colored cord. Bright beads, shining buttons, some brass headed tacks and a few other such remarkable "presents" were also tied on, and then ... lighted candles were stuck all over it, giving quite a festive air to the queerest Christmas tree that was probably ever seen. But the Eskimo children enjoyed it to a wonderful degree, and the homesick sailors grew bright and cheerful in giving them such a novel pleasure.—New York Tribune.

Poisoned by a Snake In Alcohol.

A surprising experiment demonstrating the lasting qualities of snake poison was recently made by Professor Maisonneuve, which showed that a dead snake is almost as dangerous as a live one. The professor took an unusually large specimen of the common viper of southern France, which for more than 20 years had been exhibited in the zoological museum at Angers, France, preserved in alcohol. The first experiment with one of the poisonous fangs of this snake seemed to show that the 20 years' contact with the alcohol had robbed the poison of its virulence, for a sparrow scratched with one of its teeth did not develop any symptoms of being poisoned. The cause of the nonaction of the poison at first was speedily found, however, in the thickening of the poison at the entrance of the canal into the tooth, which ... the poison from flowing. ... Professor Maisonneuve extracted some of the poisonous substance with a ... needle and injected a minimal portion of it into the sparrow, the latter ... all the symptoms of poisoning ... half an hour, which gradually ... until it died in convulsions in ... after the injection of the poison. As it was heretofore believed that ... poison loses its dangerous and ... qualities with the death of the ... great care in handling dead ... will be a matter of common sense ...

Auntie's Practical Arithmetic.

It was only the other night, in the grammar school on Ridgold street, that an old colored woman, weary and worn with her years of ceaseless labor, comprehended for the first time in her life that the figure 4 meant four single cents combined. So happy was she at the dawning light of knowledge, rudimentary though it was, that when she saw in a store on the following day the sign, "Tacks, 4 cents; hammers, 4 cents," she could not resist the temptation to count out two little piles of four pennies each from her scanty supply and make the purchase. She did not need either, but, with her tacks and hammer, she walked out of the store as triumphantly as would a business man who had just made a real estate deal which netted him thousands of dollars.—Boston Herald.

A Last Resort For Dinner.

For sheer originality in matters of food I commend the following directions, which one of the Parisian papers gave to its subscribers. The supplies were getting lower and lower in the Prussian girt city. Seine gudgeons would not bite, so the anglers took to the sewers. "Take a long, strong line and a large hook. Bait with tallow and gently agitate the rod. In a few minutes a rat will come and smell the savory morsel. It will be some time before he decides to swallow it, for his nature is cunning. When he does, leave him five minutes to meditate on it, then pull strongly and steadily. He will make convulsive jumps, but be calm and do not let his excitement gain on you. Draw him up, et voila votre diner."—London News.

A New Danger to Firemen.

At a recent fire in the basement of a Chicago electric power house the firemen had great trouble in getting at the blaze. They had to chop holes in the floor of the dynamo room before they could get a stream on the blazing pile of waste. Not waiting for the dynamos to be shut down, they crept through the black smoke and turned a stream on the flames. In an instant they were flung to the ground with great violence, and the hose was sent flying into the air. A heavy current had passed along the stream and had shocked them. Though unconscious when rescued, they quickly recovered.—Electrical Review.

The Scientific Mind.

At the Vagabonds' dinner Sir John Robinson said he remembered in 1870, when the air was full of war and the news intelligence thrilling, he met a man of science who asked, "My dear fellow, when are you going to give us something of interest in the papers—something about sun spots?" This was not a scientific joke, Sir John assured his audience, but an actual symptom of that man's mental condition.—Westminster Gazette.

I have this day levied upon all the right, title, claim and interest of the said defendant of, in and to that certain real property situate, lying and being in the new town of Wadsworth, county of Washoe, State of Nevada, and described as follows: A portion of lot nine (9) in block two (2) of said new town of Wadsworth, county of Washoe, State of Nevada, being the 13½ feet front of the west portion of said lot, extending back the same width twenty-four (24) feet, and, from this point, twelve and a half feet wide of the same western portion, and extending to back of lot sixty-six feet.

Public notice is hereby given that I will on the 13th day of March, A. D. 1897, at 1 o'clock P. M. of said day, in front of the courthouse door of the county of Washoe, sell at public auction, for United States gold coin, to the highest and best bidder, all the right, title, claim and interest that the said defendant now has in said property, and all the right, claim and interest that the said defendant had in said property on the 20th day of October, A. D. 1896 the same being the date on which a writ of attachment, issued in said court and cause, was duly levied upon said property of, in and to the above-described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to raise sufficient money to satisfy said judgment, with interest, costs and accruing costs. W. H. McINNIS, Sheriff.

Dated February 20, 1897.

SUMMONS.

IN THE SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT Court of the State of Nevada, in and for Washoe County. The State of Nevada sends to D. H. Webster, greeting: You are hereby required to appear in an action commenced against you by Mrs. Elizabeth L. Webster, as plaintiff, in the Second Judicial District Court of the State of Nevada, in and for the County of Washoe, and answer the complaint therein within ten days after the service on you of this summons (exclusive of the day of service), is served in said county, or twenty days if served out of said county, but within said District, and in all other cases forty days; or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint. This action is brought to recover by plaintiff a divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between her and the defendant, D. H. Webster, upon the grounds of your wilful desertion of her as your wife for the period of one year and more, to-wit, since the 16th day of May 1895. And also on the grounds of your neglect for the period of one year and more to-wit, for four years last past, to provide her with the necessary comforts of life, and that such neglect was not the result of poverty on your part which you could not have avoided with ordinary industry. And said complaint also alleges that you and she intermarried at Eagleville in Modoc County in the State of California, July 31, 1891; that plaintiff has resided in Washoe County, State of Nevada, 18 months, last past; that you and plaintiff have no children and no community property. All of which will more fully appear from the Complaint, which is on file in the office of the Clerk of said Court, at Reno, in said county, and to which you are especially referred. And you are further notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded, in her complaint, to-wit, a divorce from the bonds of matrimony.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, at Reno this 20th day of January, A. D. 1897.
THOS. E. HAYDON, Atty., for plaintiff.

Too Much In a Name.

"There it is again," groaned Chumpley. "This time he's arrested for blowing a safe. That fellow's making life a long and dismal nightmare for me."

"What is it this time?"

"Same as it's been half a dozen other times—R. H. Chumpley caught in another desperate crime; my name, my initials. I'll bet there are thousands of people using that man's record in making up mine. Every once in awhile I pick up a paper to read that I've whipped my wife, though I never had such an article; raised a check, beaten a hotel, stolen a bicycle or committed a burglary."

"But no one will suspect you."

"They won't? I have a barrel of letters referring to the matter. Ministers labor with me, lawyers offer to defend me, women roast me to a turn and crooks want to enter into partnership with me. I have had some of the worst pugs you ever saw call upon me with a view to doing business."

"It doesn't seem possible."

"I tell you it's right. The thing's making me desperate. I've always led a respectable life, and to have this bugbear bobbing up continually is enough to drive a man crazy."

"I believe it's providential, Chumpley. I wouldn't accept that name of yours if a crown went with it. It's just as suggestive as Greenhorn would be. Every one who hears it thinks of a chump. Have it changed and thank your lucky stars that some one else stole it."

Changing Silver Into Gold.

Professor Emmons, one of the most skilled metallurgists in the country, claims that in the reduction of silver the molecules are so subdivided as to differ so materially from that metal that they can no longer be regarded as the same substance, but a new one and apparently the parent of both gold and silver, or the raw material out of which by a different arrangement of molecules either gold or silver is constructed. Working on this theory, he finds that this new metallic substance can be aggregated into molecules of greater density than silver and precisely corresponding with gold in color, in weight, so as to answer to every test of the United States mint as gold. In fact, he says it is gold, though manufactured from silver, of as much purity and value as that ever obtained in any other way. With further experiments on a large scale he expects that the process of manufacturing gold from silver will be very materially cheapened. At present he gets about four ounces of gold from six of silver. This would seem to indicate that the present number of elements as well as our chemistry of metals would have to be revised if Professor Emmons is not mistaken in his experiments.—Jewelers' Review.

Brazil's Jungles.

The jungles of Central America and Brazil are masses of vegetation so dense that it is practically impossible to penetrate them. ... and his party, ... of Darien, labored ... with ... hatchets and machetes ... day and achieved but half a mile. In many parts of Central America the undergrowth renews itself so rapidly that it is almost impossible to keep a road open through it. For instance, in Honduras, a road 16 feet wide was made by engineers and laborers through a jungle, the undergrowth and vines being cut away even with the ground. Two weeks later, returning to complete the work by laying stones on the roadbed, they could not find the road, the vines having completely filled the vacant space.

Where the Mistletoe Grows.

Mistletoe for centuries has been one of the most important factors in Yuletide celebrations, its use dating back as far as the days of the Druids. The hanging of the mistletoe on Christmas eve, between 11 and 12 o'clock, in many homes, is the beginning of the season's merrymaking. The bough is hung in a place where there will be no obstacle to passing under it, and the penalty for being caught beneath its branches all know.

The mistletoe of the Druids is Viscum album. It is a true parasite, existing on the sap of other trees, and never at any time is it in contact with the soil. It grows freely on apple, pear and plum trees, on poplars, thorns, maples and basswood, and rarely on the oak. It is said that the only sacred mistletoe of the Druids was that found upon the oak. The propagation is by the seeds. These are covered with a translucent, gummy substance. They are placed in position by birds, which in trying to rid their beaks of the sticky seeds rub them on the bark. The seeds which are deposited on the east or north side of the tree grow more rapidly than those to the south or west.

Some idea of the quantity of mistletoe that is used annually in London may be had when it is known that from the two counties of Worcester and Hereford alone more than 100 tons are shipped each season. Much also finds its way from Normandy and from France to the London market. Large quantities are imported yearly to New York, Boston and Philadelphia, and much reaches Chicago.

The mistletoe generally seen in the market here is a cousin to the European species and is known as Phoradendron flavescens. It is smaller, both in berries and leaf. It is found in great quantities in New Jersey and southward through the Carolinas, New Mexico and Indian Territory.—Chicago Record.

Tommy Had Tried It.

"Tommy, I have told you again and again not to speak when older persons are talking, but wait until they stop."

"I have tried that already, mamma. But they never stop."—Chicago Record.
